Deglobalization: Disruptions and Opportunities
Speaker Program 2019-2020

Deglobalization is the process of diminishing interdependence and integration between nation-states. This term is widely used to describe periods in history when economic, trade, and investment between countries decline. It stands in contrast to globalization, in which nations become increasingly integrated and dependent upon each other over time. Our Friday Speakers Series will focus on the disruptions deglobalization can cause to established economic, military, and political relationships and alliances that have existed since the end of World War II. The series will also explore any opportunities that may arise as a result of these new relationships that may foster a different but new world order beyond that given by the Bretton-Woods Agreement.
